Alabama Archaeological Society Summer Meeting at Moundville

The Alabama Archaeological Society held its summer meeting on June 30th beginning at 10:30am at Moundville Archaeological Park, where the UA's Dr. Jim Knight revealed his latest findings from the ancient civilization of Moundville—an earthlodge! Moundville Archaeological Park is also the site of the 2001 Alabama Museum of Natural History's Summer Expedition, and under Knight's supervision, the Expedition team uncovered the earthlodge. According to Betsy Gilbert, AAS First Vice President and Program Chair for this meeting, "The annual Expedition, which began June 10, is one of the few archaeology camps in the country that provides a hands-on scientific field school to high school students and others interested in learning archaeological field techniques, lab procedures, and artifact identification."

The AAS summer meeting began with a special presentation by Bob Pasquill about the Civilian Conservation Corps (CCC), an environmental program created by President Franklin D.

Roosevelt to remedy uncontrolled environmental exploitation and to provide jobs during the Great Depression. Bob, archaeologist for the USDA Forest Service, presented his research on the CCC's activities in Alabama during the 1930s and provided an extensive collection of CCC artifacts including photographs, uniforms, CCC rings, and other unit memorabilia. Bob's research includes interviews with former CCC team members, excavations of camp sites around the state, and studies of various CCC projects including bridges and, of course, the excavations at Moundville.

After lunch on the grounds, approximately 50 Society members and guests toured the current excavations and Jim Knight gave a presentation on the earthlodge and an adjacent prehistoric structure. Earthlodges are rare in the Southeast and none have been located to date in Alabama. Thus far, less than one-quarter of the outside wall including a corner and the narrow passageway entrance, has been excavated. This earthlodge dates to the very end of the 1400s, about the time of the abandonment of Moundville, so several questions will have to be answered by continuing archaeological investigations at the site.

The day's events ended with a tour of the David L. DeJarnette Research Laboratory and the Erskine Ramsey Archaeological Repository. The Lab houses all the current research activities of the Office of Archaeological Services of The University of Alabama. Supported almost exclusively by outside contracts, archaeologists based at OAS conduct research for a wide variety of agencies around the state and region. AAS members and guests were treated to an insider's tour of the laboratory facilities and got a good sense of the amount of data that is processed by OAS annually. Erskine Ramsey is a restricted access facility that serves as a repository for artifacts recovered from a wide range of archaeological sites around the Southeast. It is a state-of-the-art archive capable of securely storing over 19,000 cubic feet of archaeological materials. Researchers from around the world make application to study materials housed at Erskine Ramsey including artifacts, maps, and photographs.

AAS Student Paper Award

The first annual Alabama Archaeological Society Student Paper Award will be presented at the 2001 Winter Meeting. The purpose of the award is to encourage student participation in the meeting. The award will consist of contributed books dealing with Southeastern Archaeology and related topics.

Any person currently enrolled in a BA or MA granting program may submit a paper for the award. Only single-authored papers are eligible for the award. The paper must be presented at the program of the 2001 annual meeting of the Alabama Archaeological Society. Papers must also be submitted in advance of the meeting for judging by a committee appointed by the Board. It is also the responsibility of the submitter to send the necessary registration forms at the proper time to the Program Chairperson. Students must be a member of the AAS to submit a paper.

Submit an electronic version of the paper via e-mail or three double-spaced hard copies of the paper to the AAS Student Paper Award Committee by October 15th, 2001. The submitter will insure that the same version of the paper reviewed for the competition is offered for presentation at the annual meeting. A cover letter should accompany the entry, containing a representation of the submitter's current status in a degree program and the name of a major professor involved with the research. Only one paper submitted per applicant may be considered for the award. E-mail the entry to pcarr@jaguar1.usouthal.edu and post the hard copies to Dr. Phillip Carr, AAS Student Paper Award, Department of Sociology and Anthropology, HUMB 34, University of South Alabama, Mobile, AL 36688-0002.

The winner of the Student Paper Award will be announced at the Annual Winter Business Meeting of the AAS. The winner must pick up the book prize at the annual meeting. The committee reserves the prerogative to defer the award in the event of a shortage of competitive entries.

Finance Committee

AAS President Gary Mullen has appointed Boyce Driskell as chairman of the Finance Committee. This appointment concludes committee appointments for this year.

What's Happening

The Office of Archaeological Services, University of Alabama Museums, has begun the development of a state-wide GIS coverage for archaeologically surveyed space. Primary funding is from a TEA-21 grant from the Alabama Department of Transportation with significant additional support from the Alabama Historical Commission. The project will map all Phase I surveys in the state (currently over 5,000 reports on file) and attach an attribute table to each area. The table will provide information on performing and sponsoring agency/organization, the date, the NADB document number for the report, and the reference. The table will also include information on survey methods and results. As the coverage is developed, it will be available as part of the Alabama Cultural Resources Online Database.

Field Trip of the Birmingham, Cullman, Florence, and Huntsville Chapters

Forty-two members of the Birmingham, Cullman, Florence, and Huntsville Archaeological Chapters gathered at 10:00 a.m. in the conference room of the Tennessee Valley Art Museum on June 9, 2001 to participate in a field trip to observe some of the finest examples of petroglyphs in North Alabama. Lucie Ayers of the museum welcomed everyone and explained the objectives and the materials of the museum. The group watched a video made especially for the museum concerning archaeology of North Alabama and the two stones with ancient Native American rock carvings housed in a special, permanent display in the museum. Bart Henson of the Huntsville Chapter, leader and guide for the field trip, then discussed the itinerary for the day. This began by examining the two large sandstone boulders housed for protection from vandalism and destruction relocated from a bluff shelter in Colbert County. There are many beautiful carvings on the stones and everyone was quite impressed.

The group then traveled to an open site on a side of a hill in Colbert County to observe two sandstone boulders with petroglyphs discovered within the past five years. The site lies on private land and the landowner has spent time and money to insure the security and safety of the carvings. Bart Henson stated that these two stones exhibited probably the finest examples of rock carving by ancient Americans in the state and that these were certainly treasures of the state that needed protection.

The participants then were led to Franklin County to a large sandstone arch containing a large sandstone boulder with many rock carvings. This site was visited by many in the group three years ago on a similar excursion by the Chapters. All were appalled at the large amount of graffiti and vandalism that has taken place. It was discussed that something must be done to protect these wonderful treasures from the careless acts of vandalism that seem to be increasing at these sites.

The field trip ended at a large bluff shelter in Lawrence County within the boundary of the Bankhead Forest. All of the participants thanked Bart Henson and John Martz for the opportunity to view these sites and for their hard work in recording the petroglyphs of Alabama. We also thank them for bringing to our attention the need to protect these magnificent works of art.

AAS Pottery Typology Volume Update

At present, the AAS pottery volume exists as a manuscript listing basic information on approximately 725 different named pottery types and varieties which have been used in Alabama. The next step in manuscript preparation is to select and compile the numerous illustrations needed for the volume. Not all types need illustration. The numerous plain or check stamped types are examples. There are many existing photographs and drawings which can be used. Some illustrations will require locating examples of the type and making a photograph. The pottery volume will also include distribution maps for all types with at least 100 reported sherds.

Production of the manuscript is being conducted at the Office of Archaeological Services at Mound State Park. The cost is supported, in part, by a grant from the Alabama Historical Commission for $3,000.00. The AAS has committed to matching this grant with $3000 in Society funds.

Board of Directors Meeting

The next meeting of the Board of Directors will be Tuesday, September 18th in Clanton. All Board members will receive notice of the exact time and place closer to the meeting date.

Calendar

The 2001 Southeastern Archaeological Conference will be held November 14-17, 2001 at the Marriott Hotel, Chattanooga Tennessee.

AAS Scholarships

The Alabama Archaeological Society will award two scholarships this year in the amount of $250.00 each to two students actively engaged in an archaeological research project. Proposals for the scholarships must be submitted to the Scholarship Committee by January 31st. The Scholarship Committee will review the proposals and make recommendations to the Board of Directors at the Spring BOD meeting. The Board of Directors will vote on the proposals at the Spring meeting and an announcement of the recipients will be made by March 31st.

Minimum criteria for the grants are: 1) the student recipients must be a member of the Alabama Archaeological Society, 2) the research project that the student is involved with must be located in the state of Alabama, 3) the student must be an undergraduate or a graduate student enrolled in a college or university in the State of Alabama with an active anthropology program, 4) the student must submit a letter of endorsement from an anthropology program, and 5) the student will be required to present a paper on his or her research project at the Winter meeting.

Public Education

The Alabama Archaeological Society will award public education grants this year in the amount of $500.00. Single grant awards shall not exceed $500.00. Proposals for the grants must be submitted to the Public Education Committee Chairman by January 31st. The Public Education Committee will review the proposals and make recommendations to the Board of Directors at the Spring BOD meeting. The Board of Directors will vote on proposals at the Spring meeting and an announcement of the grant recipient (s) shall be made by March 31st.

Minimum criteria for the grants are: 1) the project director/grant administrator must be a member of the Alabama Archaeological Society, 2) the public education project must be located in the State of Alabama, 3) the project director or his or her representative will be required to give a presentation on the project at the Winter meeting.

Research Grant

The Alabama Archaeological Society will grant an award of $500.00 this year to a deserving archaeological research project. Grant proposals must be submitted to the Archaeological Resources Chairman by January 31st. The Archaeological Resources Committee will review the proposals and make recommendations to the Board of Directors at the Spring BOD meeting. The Board of Directors will vote on the proposals at the Spring meeting and an announcement of the recipient shall be made by March 31st. Minimum criteria for the grant are: 1) the project director/grant administrator must be a member of the Alabama Archaeological Society, 2) the project must be located in Alabama, 3) the project director or his or her representative will be required to present a paper on the archaeological project at the Winter meeting and, 4) the project director or other personnel working on the project must submit a written report for publication in the Journal of Alabama Archaeology within twelve months of receiving the grant.

ARTIFACTS!

Do you have any interesting artifacts that you would like to share with the members of the Alabama Archaeological Society? If you do, please send a description of the artifact and a color photo (black and white is fine if that's all you have) to the editorial staff here at Stones & Bones and we'll include it in an upcoming issue.

Happy Fourth of July!

TELL US ABOUT IT!

The editorial staff at Stones & Bones is looking for articles to publish and we would like those articles to come from you the members. If you have visited a site recently that you found to be of interest (it doesn't have to be in Alabama) tell us about it. If you have been doing research on a particular topic, tell us about it. If you have been involved in anything else archaeological, tell us about it. These do not have to be professional papers, so please feel free to contribute. If you have color pictures (if you only have black and white photos that's fine) which accompany your article, please send those as well and we will include them with your article.

READ ANY GOOD BOOKS LATELY?

Are you a reader? Do you read interesting books about archaeology and related topics? Do you think others might be interested in reading the same books? If so, Stones & Bones would like to hear from you. If you have read an interesting book, write a review and send it to us. Book reviews are a good way of letting others know about archaeological publications which may be of interest.
